The Burj Al Arab

The Burj Al Arab (or "Arabian Tower") is the tallest hotel building in the world. Built on an artificial island in Dubai, the glamour capital of the United Arab Emirates, this seven-star-all-suite hotel has already become an international landmark.

With 202 suites, and floor to ceiling windows offering a breathtaking view of the sea, the Burj Al Arab offers a wide choice of rooms.

The two Royal Suites on the 25th level are undoubtedly the most luxurious hotel rooms in the world.

A new kind of luxury has been especially created for this very special hotel where everything is beyond compare.

The Burj al Arab combines the spirit of traditional Arabian culture with the quality of the latest technology and modern design.

Sicis was able to supply the hotel with "ne plus ultra" marble and "Smalto" mosaics, with "tesserae" in colors specially created for this project in the same way as much of the decor designed on commission.

The architects - a team of 150 designers and engineers from the globe-trotting English designbuild firm K.C.A. - have carefully planned each step of the project and have supplied Sicis with all the necessary details and specifications.

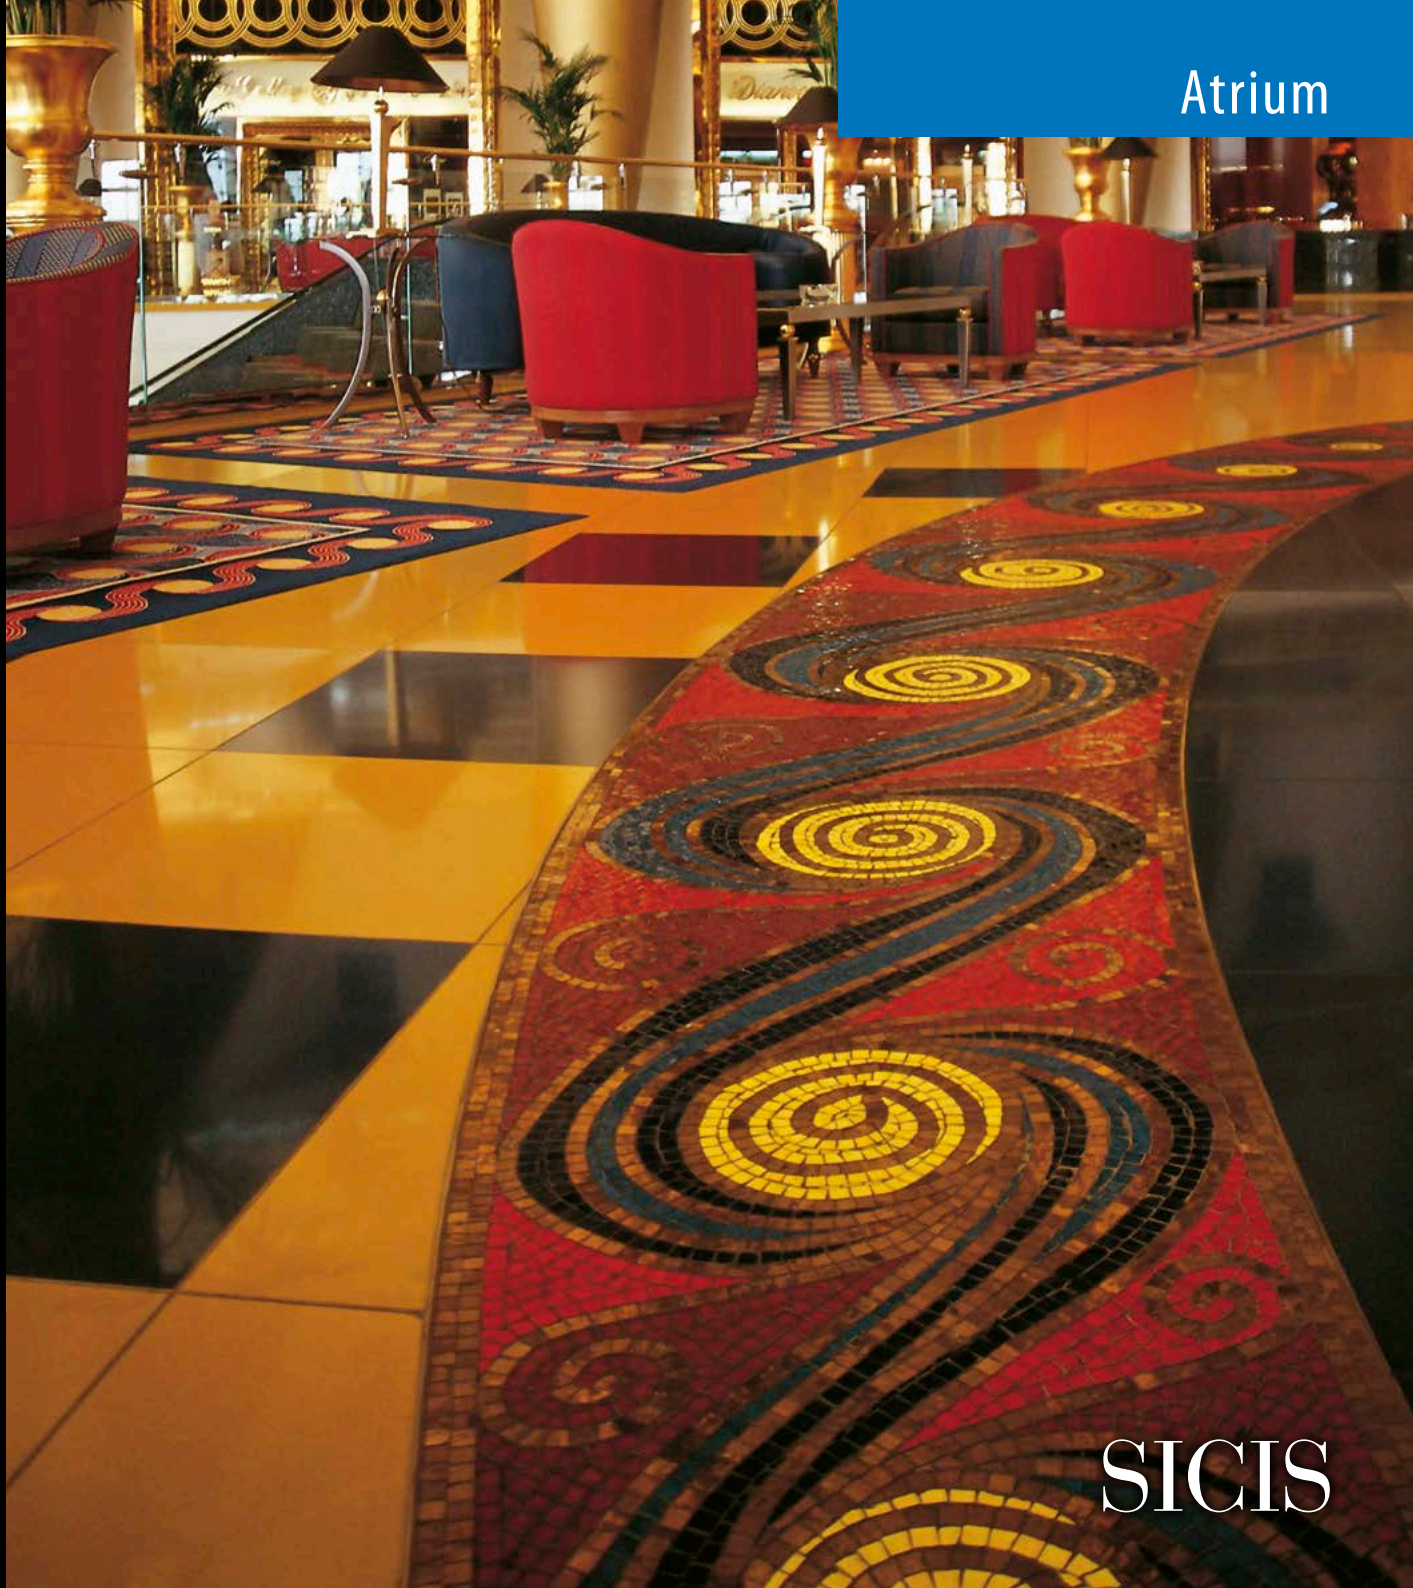

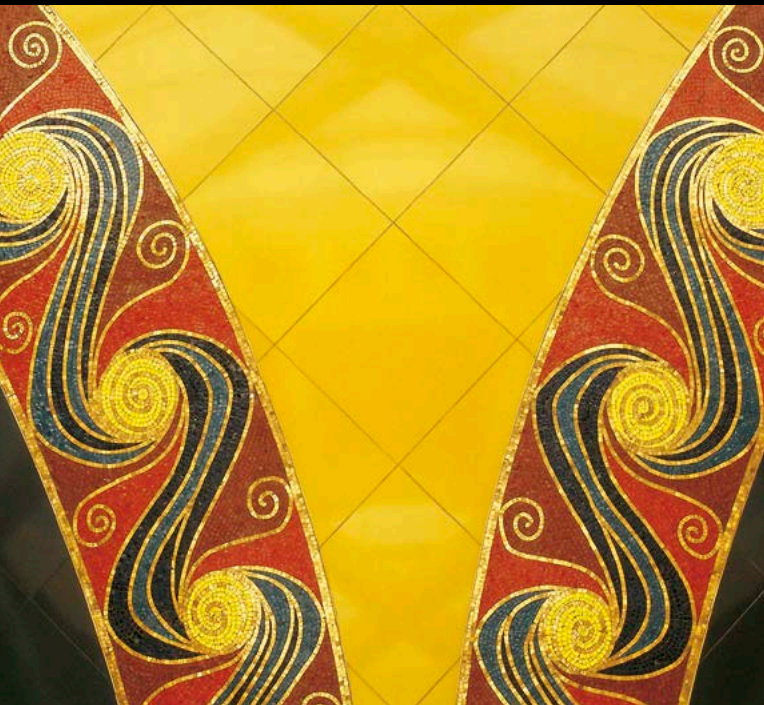

Sicis marble and "Smalto" mosaics have been used extensively throughout the hotel because of their high quality, beauty and style. They can be found on the floors and walls of the suites and restaurants, on columns and domes, in the Spa and health fitness facilities, as well as in the hotel's atrium which is the largest in the world.
