Villa Calicanto • A modern times “Roman Domus”

Inspired by the nearby remains of the Roman Villa known as the "Grotte di Catullo", SICIS reinterprets the ancient mosaic decorations of the domus, declined in a modern key.

This modern villa overlooking the western shores of the peninsula, with its spa area covered in marble mosaic, is a tribute to the famous archaeological site on the northern tip which, in its heyday, housed a vast thermal sector. Going down into the micro-environment, i.e. Villa Calicanto itself, we find this alternation of ancient and modern everywhere, especially in the decorations that go from the Roman-inspired mosaic to the pixel mosaic that portrays more recent motoring subjects.

SICIS

The Roman Villa of Sirmione

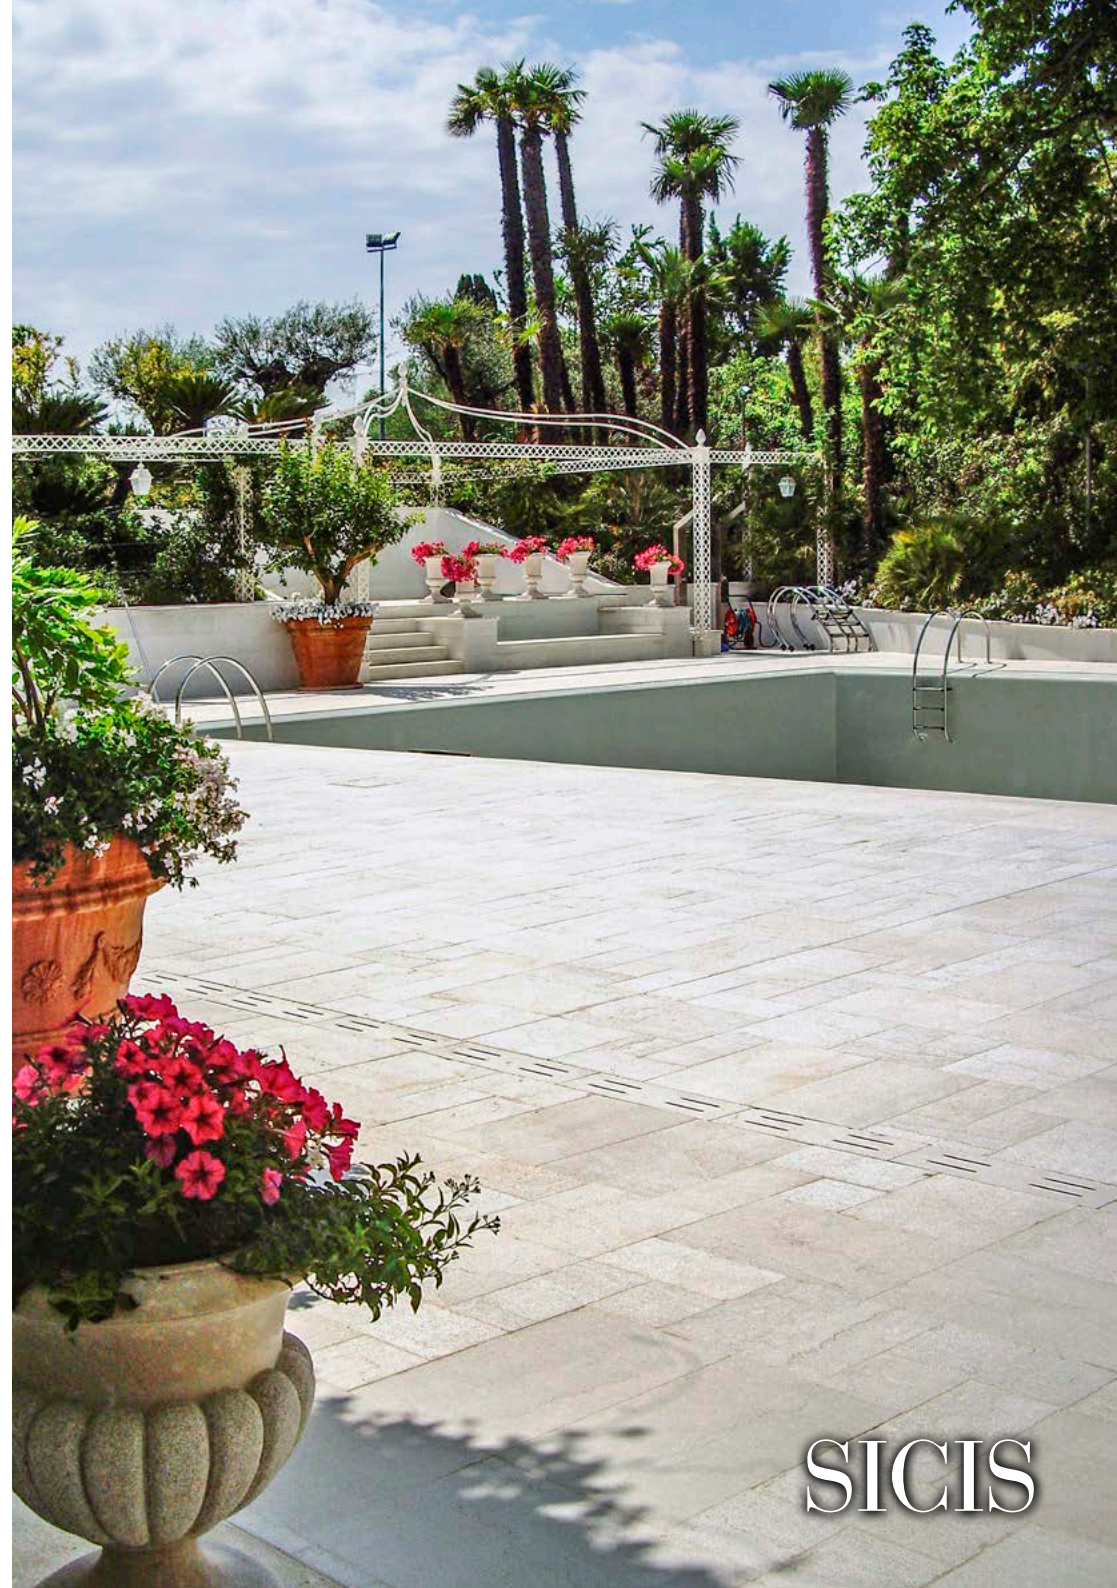

The term "Grotte di Catullo" actually identifies one of the most impressive examples of Roman villa in northern Italy, dating from the end of the 1st century BC and the 1st century AD. It covers an area of about two hectares and, despite the deterioration it has undergone over the centuries, we can still observe the long porticoes and terraces, the central part once occupied by an extensive garden, a large thermal sector with various rooms and a pool. A museum has also been set up inside the archaeological park which houses the finds of this and other archaeological sites in the area.

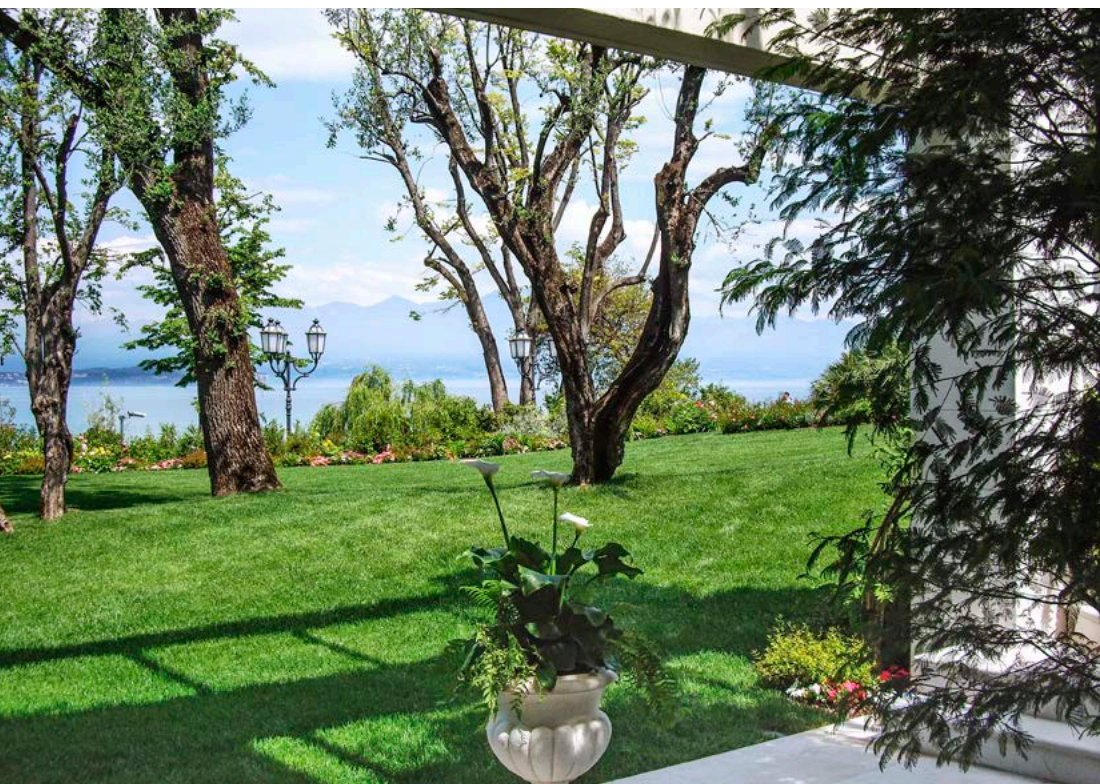

A photograph of Villa Calicanto, a modern white building with a balcony, surrounded by lush greenery and palm trees. The villa is a two-story structure with a clean, minimalist design. It features a prominent balcony on the upper floor with a white metal railing. The building is nestled among various tropical plants, including several tall palm trees and dense shrubs. A well-maintained green lawn is in the foreground, and the entire scene is framed by the thick, textured trunks of palm trees on either side. The sky is a clear, bright blue with a few wispy clouds.

The Inspiration behind Villa Calicanto

Wellness Centre · Between past and present

Drawing on the millenary history of the Roman baths, SICIS creates a modern Wellness Center with an ancient charm.

The Roman baths were one of the main meeting places in ancient Rome. Those intended for the patricians were real monuments, with colonnades, domed structures, decorative statues and mosaic coverings. Inside you could find changing rooms, gyms, outdoor pools, saunas and then a series of rooms in succession – frigidarium, tepidarium and calidarium – to allow the passage from cold water to hot water. In addition to the public baths, there were private baths, built in the villas of the wealthiest citizens.

The history of the Roman Mosaic in the baths

Ancient Roman baths had complex heating systems, with furnaces sending hot air under floors raised on stone pillars.

The floors were covered with tiles and later decorated with marble mosaics. The geometric decorations in alternating colours were often interspersed with imaginary figures or masks with accentuated features.

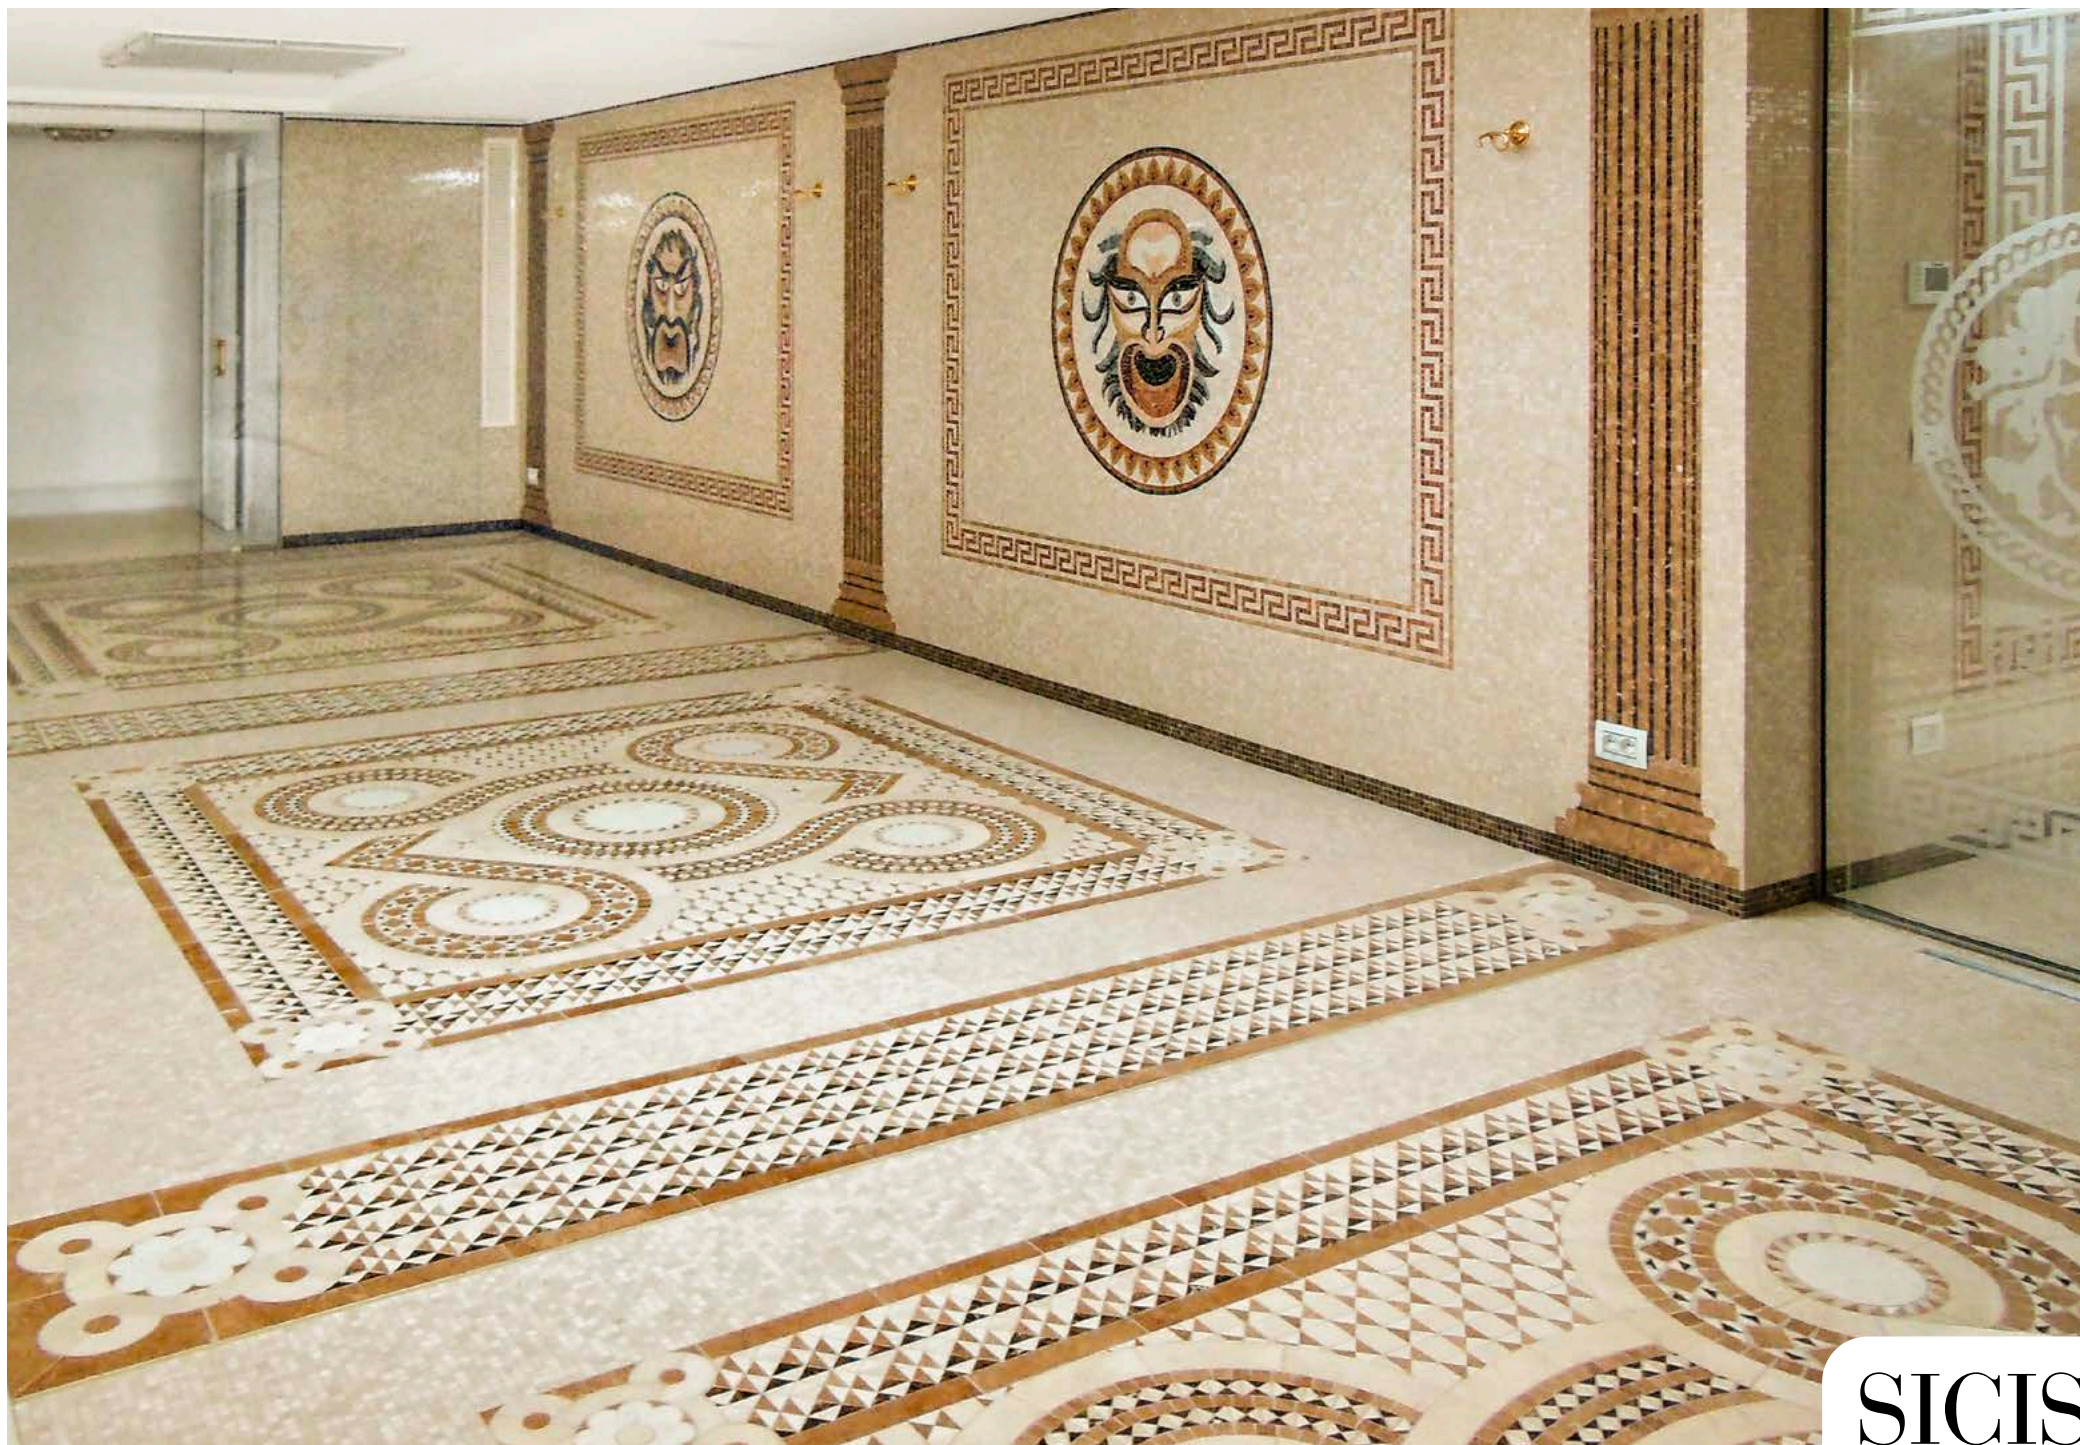

The beauty of these mosaics in many cases has come down to us, evidence of an eternal and always vital art.
